

News from Rev. Steven Straub

To my beloved Beargrass family,

Over the past several months, people have asked me, "What are you doing? What's next for you?" Today, I finally have some news to share.

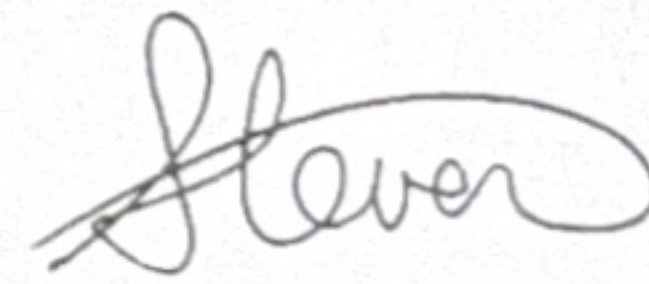

I am excited to share two new ministerial settings to which I have been called. Primarily, I will be serving as the Senior Minister at Carrollton Christian Church in Carrollton, Kentucky. My first day there is April 1. Additionally, I have also been called to a position in our regional office to serve as the Executive Director of Camp WaKon-Da'Ho. I am particularly excited about the camp position as I will still be able to watch my Beargrass kids and youth grow for years to come.

As I accept these new calls, it does mean that my time as an official member of the Beargrass ministerial team will be coming to an end. However, you can't get rid of me that easily. I will still be based in Louisville as I care for my father, and Beargrass will forever be my church home. I am able to take these next steps in ministry because of your love, support, and care. And with my call to the Disciples regional office, I will still be connected to Beargrass, so will still see me from time to time as we work together to ensure the success of the outdoor ministry in our region.

I will still be at Beargrass for several more weeks during the month of March, so I look forward to celebrating these new calls with you.

From the bottom of my heart, know that I will forever be grateful for this congregation.

Peace,

Rev. Steven Straub
